GLORIOUS 4TH.

BAND CONCERT--PLAYOUT BY V. F. A. FIREWORKS AND DANCE IN THE EVE-

Although Arliugton had no spreadeagle speaches made on the Fourth. yet she enthusiastically celebrated this National holiday of the American people. Everybody well knew even on Monday that the glorious Fourth was approaching, though the ominous firecraker sent off by the boys who could'nt wait. In does one's soul good to see how the small boy puts his whole heart and body into the celebration of Independence Day. With his inventive genius, he can somehow cause his small firearms to give forth a report equal to the report of a 74 pounder. Yes, the Fourth in Arlington really began on Monday evening when Hose 3 kept with a gentle reminder that we have open house all night, so that its members might hold themselves in readiness for the deadly fire, should any occur, and that they might give greeting and "boys" had their receiving room tastefully decorated with the American colors, and the long table and side tables laden with everything good to eat and drink. Many of the citizens of the town, among whom were those Fowle's Block, Arlington prominent in official life, dropped in during the night, to give greeting to Hose 3, and to sample their "goods." A social chat, informal but hearty was showed they took up when all had been dancing became the order of the hour. fuls. During the night the "boys" music. At sunrise all the church bells in the town were set a ringing, and at it they kept for a half hour. From 10 to 12 in the morning a band concert was given under the auspices of the Improvement Society on the green alongside the Unitarian Church, on the re-erected platform of the committee in charge. The band is known under the name of the Fifteen years before the public rst Battalion Band of Boston. Its music was enjoyed by a large number of our that we are still with you, and people. > At twelve o'clock the fire department was called to subdue the flames which for some mysterious reason had burst forth from Peck's boat house. The fire was quickly subdued. The damage to the boat house was but slight.

The Veteran Firemen's Association kept open house at its rooms during the afternoon and evening of the 4th. It gave special entertainment to the Rox bury veterans, and indeed to all their friends in Arlington. As previously announced, it had a playout on Broadway, where it threw a stream 197 feet into the air. After returning to their rooms the firemen met an army o friends during the afternoon and even ing, and gave them from their well

Mr. Hardy places his loss between wo and three thousand dollars, it being fully insured.

At sunset the big cannon boomed forth again, while the boys made the air echo with their toy pistols and firecrackers. And the church bells raig out again their notes of loyalty and patriotism. The evening was made luminous in many quarters of the town with fireworks. Taken as a whole, the Fourth of July was a success all round in Arlington, May the day never grow less with us. ### "AMERICA FOR AMERICANS."

Our patriotic and intense saying "America for Americans" possibly means all right, if it doesn't sound all right, and vet there is in its composition something that smacks of selfishness. "America fer the world" should be the motto of every man, woman and child. No more can a nation live for and unto herself alone than can the individual. If we observe the law of a healthful growth then we must of necessity regard the rights and interests of others. This "we and our folks" in the long run does'nt pay. There are others aside from ourselves whose right it is to live. We a good deal suspect that our present war with the Philipines is an outgrowth of our boastful hurrah, "America for Americans." "Remember the Maine" has about it the atmosphere of a vindictive spirit. As a nation we are in duty bound, to maintain the nonor and dignity of the American public and this, too, at any cost. But we are not to cut and slav and shoot down for the sake of "getting even," and for that other purpose of self aggrandizement. "America for the world "has about it the ring of an unselfish philanthropy.

Before the expiration of two years at the head and front of the Long Island railroad system. President Baldwin has wrought marvelous changes for the better. Under his management the railroad beds have been made dustless, the train service has been increased a hundred fold, while the equipments of the road have been vastly improved and multiplied in every way. And it should not be forgotten that all this has been done by President Baldwin and his excellent corps of assistants by first recognizing the fact that Long Island must be developed for all she's worth, if the Long Island railroad would secure to and for itself all the possibilities of its future.

So the very first thing that President Baldwin did upon assuming the responsibilities of his office. was to act quaint himself with Long Island, and ington as Miss Mary Shattuck, daughter her business people. Of course he of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Shattuck, made it a condition precedent that he would gather about him in the management of the Long Island railroad, the did, for when the courtesies of our best and most experienced ability that could be secured. This done, so that equipped for his work in every detail, follows: "Mr. Palmer, we were about he set about as we have already said, to take a ride through The Fells, and learn of Long Island and her people.

Aside from President Baldwin's business tact, he is one of the most genial company us." As we wrote in an of men to meet. With a hearty, pleasant greeting he invariably welcomes the stranger as well as the friend; and plied with a good deal of readiness, this he does in no officious way. There is no "cloth" about President Baldwin. A man of affairs, and busy every moment of his long day, yet he finds of the Fells which we have not seen, and time for a cheery "good morning" and particularly were we glad to go along, a cordial handshake. Mr. Baldwin once as we were to have the company of told us in conversation that no one is those whom we had known so pleasantlet go from his office until he has made ly and so well so many years ago. Everybody on Long Island knows that the President of the Long Island railroad ham. future, has one of the best managed railroads in all the country through, to assist her in the development of that stretches and along its winding paths, future. President Baldwin has made himself familiar with all Long Island from the East River to Montauk Point. He is daily coming in touch with her people. He consults their interests and so learns what they most desire of the Long Island raiiroad. He recognizes that the railroad is or should be the servant of the people, and in no instance, its master. He understands, as we have already said the philosophy of railroading, so that he invariably works in a logical way. If the vast railroad interests in this country would, as does the railroad of which we write, take first into account the interests of the people, then it would be not only better for the people, but for our railroad system at large. President William A. Baldwin, jr., has substantially taken the people of Long Island into active partnership, and as a result he has now for his road, one of the best natured Island and her railroad are inseparably one in all their present interests and in this fortunate condition of things is largely due to the keen business sagacity, and sense of right possessed by the President of the Long Island railroad.

A DAY IN WINCHESTER.

A day pleasantly passed in Winchester is of sufficiently local importance without apology. It was on Sunday morning that we made our way to the two-fold object of seeing the building of which we had heard so many pleasant things said, and to listen to the new pastor, the Rev. Mr. Lawrence, whose reputation as a pulpit divine, had preceded him. We were sorry to be late of the Long Island railroad is one of switch when nearing Winchester for the the most successful and far-seeing rail- electric car from Reading to pass us, served as an effectual bar to our usual promptness. However we were in seawork. A Boston boy, educated in her son to get the gist of the sermon which schools, and a graduate of Harvard Col. was both scholarly and patriotic. We would respectfully suggest to the electhe age of 35 years, he stands among tric company connecting the towns of who understand railroading from A delay, a double track. To be sidetracked in these last days of the nine-Young Baldwin during his college teenth century is altogether out of keep. with his business ability, that he passing, a word of that delightful church where he would find a larger field for and society have for their hours of pubgatherings. We are under many obligations to Mr. Pratt, a member of the building committee, for showing us all the ins and outs of this unique edifice. The building is indeed a model and its site is delightful; and what is better than

> Lawrence, is eminently worthy of it all. After dining at the table of a hospitole friend we called upon Mr. Jacob Stanton, one of the leading business men of Winchester, that we might exchange greetings with Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Lucius Stanton of New York who is at present a guest of Mrs. Jacob Stanton. Mrs. Lucius Stanton will be remembered by the older people of Arlwhose residence was on Franklin street. waters of the several lakes. When Spot pond is raised some four or five feet, as it is to be, then will the popular Langwood Hotel have a water front, which will add to its already many attractions. This Hotel so favorably known to the general public, is fortunate in its situation. Indeed it occupies just such site to which one would gladly withdraw himself from the world, for the summer season, to lie under its grand old shade trees and watch the glimmer of the waters directly in front of him.

Those winding country roads over the hills and through the valleys margined by the wood and open field, and then between all the delightful waters, make up such a variety of landscape scenery and most enthusiastic patronages that and water view, that a full description can anywhere be found. To-day, Long of the outline and filling of the picture is not possible. The towns near to and around the Fells are especially fortunate in having such a restful and inspiring retreat to which they may betake themselves. To repair thither on a Sunday is to find the spirit of all worship awaiting your coming. Bryant had unquestionably worshiped in the grand that we may write of it in these columns old forests, or otherwise he would not have written that "the groves were God's first temples." To get near Winchester Unitarian church, for the nature, is to get near the Author of Nature. One can best learn of God through His works. And so it was that on Sunday riding through the Fells, a quartette of us, we were re-created by all that is most beautiful and exquisite in that William A. WHAT IS NEWS? What is news? is a question that may well be asked by every editor of a week ly or daily journal, We recognize the truth, that the newspaper must largely meet the demands of the public if it is to financially succeed in its work. We recognize too, that the average public taste delights more or less in useless gossip, and eagerly reads it when in print. The tendency of the news paper world is to stretch out its news column. "There are others," especially in these modern days when streetspinning, shopping, and clubs make such inexorable demands on the time of the maternal sex.

"Do you think that one can live in New York and remain absolutely ignorant of the ways of this wicked world?" "No replied Miss Cayenne; "not unless he happens to be Chief of Police."

Housekeeping is not only one of the most necessary, but also one of the noblest of the fine arts. An ignorant woman, or a woman with bad taste, cannot possibly have a clean, well-ordered, smoothly-run house, stamped from best room to darkest closet with a strong, clear-headed, refined personality. Most women who have not such homes are incapable of constructing them. Their shrill protests that their failure is not due to incapacity but to scorn for the 'vulgar details' of housework do not deceive any intelligent woman, although of course all ignorant, slothful, the outward world. Our day in Win street-spinning women eagerly assent "vulgar" only when vulgar persons essav it.

We shouted at the top of our lungs the other day to a justly proud father who was wheeling in one baby carriage, his two years and a half twins, Tom and Willie, and their sister Mary, twenty months their senior. Our Baptist brethren do not believe in giving the devil any vantage ground, and especially in hot weather, when his satanic majesty puts in his best work. We believe our Baptist friends are right in keeping their church open on each Sunday of the year. While our clergymen should have their wellearned vacation, still we can see no good reason why the church doors should be closed. Our Catholic friends have an open church every day in the week the whole year round, and the Fennary field, and was witnessed by practice is not only a delightful one but a useful one. It has been recognized on all sides one of the livest localities in all Arlington. It had its start through the pluck of men and women who were determined to win. In the first place they chose a commanding site for their corner of the town, and they have left nothing undone for the rapid and healthful growth of the Hill. By this spirit of enterprise, they have drawn to themselves the best of those looking for homes. They have been and are up to every good work. The people of Crescent Hill do no sleeping in the day time; and no grass grows under their feet. They are up and at it all the while. The convenient and unique club-house which they have dedicated to all good purposes is a testimonial to their push and "hurrah boys." As we sat in the large reception room of the club house on the sweltering 4th and caught the refreshing breeze, and reduced our fevered temperature by ice cream and lemonade, we shouted our loudest for Crescent Hill. But we must hid, celebrated through its club, the Nationaal holiday. The long program was rendered with patriotic zest, and was enjoyed by a large number of people, all of whom enthsiastically agreed that the club has the honor of giving the Heights the most elaborate Fourth-of July celebration ever witnessed in this locality. The large crowd was remarkably orderly, and no accident or hitch occurred to mar the pleasures of the day. The morning opened with a base ball game between the married men and the single men of the club. The game was played on the about 300 people. The game opened with the married men at the bat, and after scoring 3 runs they retheir inning, and after that it was nip and tuck until the end of the In the fifth inning the married men batted Cole out of the box, and he was succeed by Hod Lewis, but he fared no better than Cole, and he retired in favor of Kenny, but it was no use. ### ODDS AND UNDS

Christian Science is a misnomer for it is neither christian nor scientific. A pseudo "science" cannot be christian. A disease-microbe is a living fact, not the creation of fancy. It contains a lot of wickedness but no sin. It does not enter the body through malice or incantations, but by inhalations or drinking. It is as stubborn a fact as the tack to Electro and Hydro therapeutics. that pierces your naked foot. The Brooklyn (N. Y.) School Commissioners contemplate establishing schools for teaching girls bed-making, cooking, sewing, and other household functions. This is practical common sense. The art of housekeeping is rapidly degenerating. Girls of the present day have little opportunity, eyen if they have the inclination, to learn this useful and ornamental art, (1 °) because the majority of mothers are too ignorant (though wise in everything else) to teach them, and (2°) because the demands of society leave them little time to devote to the training of children. The consequence is that in many homes the most verdant greenhorns are established as the literal and absolute mistresses of household affairs. Do you ask of what use is it to teach girls an art which they are never expected to practise? The same question may be asked with equal propriety respecting many other arts which are studied by girls in public schools and elsewhere. It will be of no small advantage to the girl when she shall be placed at the head of a household that she know how its affairs should be conducted and that she be able to transmit information to those ostensibly under That unsophisticated prude, Anthony

Comstock, has again mounted his lofty steed, and with fire flashing from his eyes and vengeance dire gushing from his nostrils and oozing from every pore of his body, is threatening to prosecute the management of the National Export Exposition if the art poster adopted by them is submitted to public gaze. This poster contains a female figure representing Columbia inviting the nations of the world to join in the exposition of American manufactures, and extending to them a welcome to the international commercial congress. What boots it to Anthony that it was a prize drawing selected by a competent committee from a score of drawings, and that it is greatly admired on both sides of the sea as a work of art, if his delicate sensibilities are shocked by reason, perchance, of Columbia not wearing pantalets or the dress not covering her fair neck to the chin? His besom has swept out of sight many unseemly things, for which all thanks. The trouble with Anthony is that he is morally color blind. He is incapable of distinguishing between art and abominations of art, between purity and impurity, between beauty and deformity. He is a social parasite in that he subsists on moral decrepitude. I suppose that the world has need of such scavengers, nevertheless my feeling toward them is akin to that of the old darkey who expressed himself as follows: "Dar am sartin folks who seem to find great consolation in tellin' how wicked de world has becum, an' how utterly impossible it am to longer find an honest man. When I h'ar sich pussons gwine on I allus move de woodpile We notice that Mr. E. If de b'ar trap which I hev sot in my cucumber patch cotches anybody tall dis summer de chances are 50 to 1 dat he'll be a social-reformer."

A serious bicycle accident occurred last Sunday on Pleasant street, somewhere near Mrs. George Freeman's home. The wheelmen were from Everett, and as they made their way down Pleasaut st. at a rapid rate, two of them collided with Mr. Frost's team from Belmont, and were so injured that they were taken to their homes in Everett, by Mr. Geo. A. Law.

Brides and Wet Weather.

A Breton bride rather likes to have a wet wedding; it is held to signify that all her tears are now shed and that she will therefore have a happy married life. I know of no similar belief in the British isles,

The Erza of Simbirsk call the day before the wedding the weeping day, and the bride and her girl friends weep all they can, with the idea, it would seem, of getting the mourning of life over so that only joy may remain.

The Badagas of the Neilgherries attain the same end by scusing the bride with water. Some Greek tribes have a similar belief in the virtue of a drenching bringing good fortune.

The Smart Young Wife,

Young Mr. and Mrs. Smith were preparing to make a visit to friends for a few days. Their baby was only 2 months old, but was an important member of the family just the same. Mr. Smith was up stairs and Mrs. Smith down stairs, putting on her things and getting ready to start. "Hubby," she called out to her better half on the floor above, "please bring me my gloves! They are lying on the dresser. And bring me my overshoes and veil and that hatpin lying on top of the chiffonier and a few of those animal crackers for baby, and don't forget the baby's toothbrush."

Poor hubby had a hard time finding everything his wife wanted. He was a long while making his appearance and finally his wife called to him, "What is keeping you, dear ?"

"Oh, that confounded toothbrush for baby! I have everything but that." Then Mrs. Smith laughed. "You silly duck," said she, "did you not know that I was only joking? The baby, bless her dear little heart, hasn't a tooth to her name."

That was why hubby got so mad and "said things" as he was coming down stairs. A man never likes to have a joke played on him by his wife. - Pittsburg Chronicle.

A Real Bottomless Pit.

Few indeed are they who have penetrated to the innermost recesses of Willis' cave-to the great rotunda where the icy water of the "big spring" takes a leap into the midnight blackness of the "bottomless pit." The entrance to the cave is at the summit of a hill near Versailles, Ind.

Rider Haggard, in his imaginary pictures of underground horrors, has told nothing that would equal the true story which a single misstep would furnish in Willis' cave. A stream of water pours from the rock, and, pursuing a devious underground channel for a quarter of a mile, emerges into a vast chamber with a slanting, slippery floor inclining to a sink hole in the center. Down this hole the stream pours and is lost forever. By means of ropes and weights the sink hole has been sounded to a depth of 400 feet, and still the bottom has not been reached. The room is surrounded by a narrow ledge of rock, on which daring explorers have made a complete circuit. One step off the ledge upon the slippery floor would mean almost instant death in the bottomless pit.

Consumption and Fresh Air.

It is a matter of common knowledge, says an English exchange, that the late Sir Andrew Clarke cured himself of consumption by living as much as possible in the open air. The principle involved has since been generally recognized by the medical profession, with the result that the old bad practice of keeping consumptives in warm, stuffy rooms has been almost entirely abandoned. It is fresh air which is mainly responsible for the cures worked at such places as Davos, where the patients spend 14 hours a day out of doors, breathing cold, bracing mountain air, while they are exhibitated by bright supshine. The result is that each diseased spot in the lungs is cut off from the healthy tissue by a ring of stretched cells, across which disease germs cannot pass, and so the malady is arrested until the strengthened body can overcome it.

Worse Than Not Stopping.

An Englishman traveling in Maryland had occasion to investigate the stopping. Carefully searching a time table he found apparently that there would be an express train due at 4 o'clock that afternoon. The English-man was on time with his grip, etc., and so was the express train. The intending passenger watched it approach and thunder by the station at top speed. The traveler was annoyed, and, turning to a colored man who stood near,

"That train didn't stop!" "No, sir," replied the colored citizen cheerfully; "didn't ev'n hes'tate."

Sweet.

"I had my picture taken today," said little Christine. "I crossed my arms and leaned on a chair, and the picture man put my head in some tongs.

"Why, you must have looked like a lump of sugar in sugar tongs," laughed papa. "Why, so I must have," said Christine delightedly, "'cause the man kept saying, 'What a sweet little girl!" What to Eat.

A Lucky Cross, The Princess of Wales possesses a cross which is supposed to always bring good luck to its owner. It was formerly the property of the king of Denmark, having been discovered years ago in the grave of the beautiful Queen Dagmar, Besides its superstitions interest, it is a fine work of art, and was given by the king to the princess on her marriage day.
